Climate change does not pause for recessions, and neither should our efforts toward net zero. By 2030, property damage from extreme weather is projected to cost Australia US$59B, and urban flood damage could cost China US$77B. Climate risk will continue to threaten asset value and occupants’ well-being if we don’t step up our mitigation actions today.

The good news is that everyone CAN do something today.

Join the ULI Asia Pacific Decarbonisation and Resilience Conference where we will break down complex issues into step-sized bites, from incentivising retrofit to scaling up decarbonising technology, ready to go into your action plan. RSVP now to secure your seat.
