

ALFREDO LOBO

He is currently a Partner of Hodes Weill & Associates, a leading global capital advisory firm focused on real estate, infrastructure and other real assets with offices in New York, Denver, London, Amsterdam, and Hong Kong. He is a member of the firm's Operating Committee. Alfredo joined Hodes Weill in 2012 to lead its business activities in APAC, including coverage of institutional investors, property companies and fund managers.

From 2000 to 2008, Alfredo was a founding partner of Latitude Capital Group, a China-focused boutique investment bank specializing in M&A and private placements, with offices in Hong Kong, Beijing and Shanghai. Alfredo and his partners built Latitude into the leading boutique for mid-market China M&A and strategic placements in its focus sectors prior to the sale of the firm to Cowen Group (NASDAQ: COWN) in 2008.

From 1994 to 2000, Alfredo was a Managing Director of Hamon Investment Group, an Asian investment management firm that formed part of BNY Mellon's family of global investment boutiques. At Hamon, he headed principal investment activities, encompassing regional private equity funds, direct investments and residential real estate developments. Alfredo also developed several cornerstone funds for Hamon, including a UCITS umbrella fund family and an SEC registered Greater China fund. He remains a non-executive director of Hamon.

Alfredo began his career with JP Morgan as part of the Corporate Finance team in Hong Kong. He later relocated to the bank's Real Estate Group in New York, where he headed private placement activities and served as Chairman of the Real Estate Credit Committee.

Alfredo was born in Hong Kong and received a BA degree from Georgetown University.
